I hate my school.

Don't you ever say that

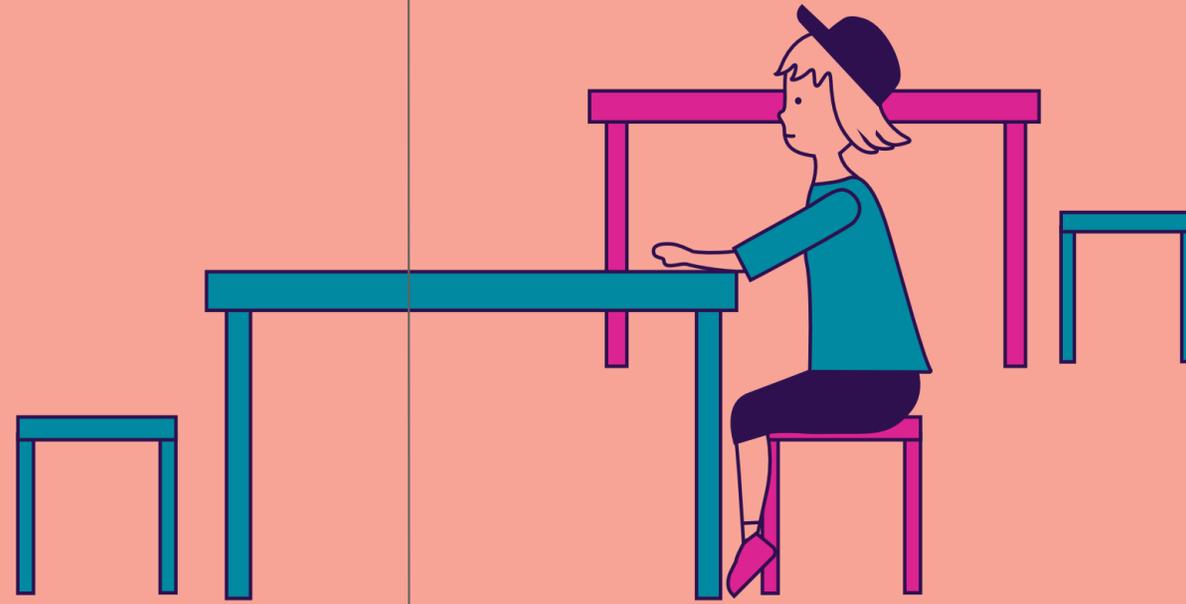

Everyone at school
is just like me.

You certainly can't trick me!

The kids at my school
don't look like me

Their foods are not familiar to me, and

I don't understand
the way they speak

Because

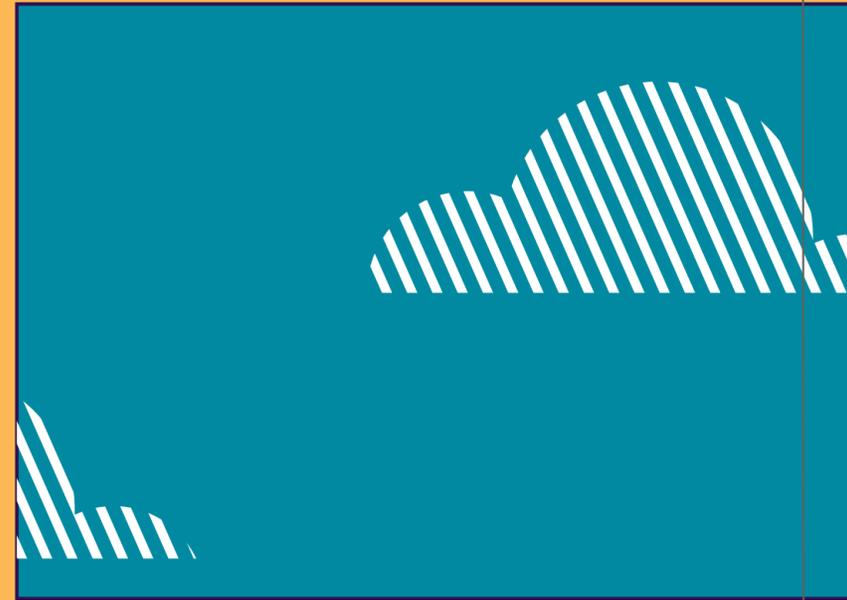

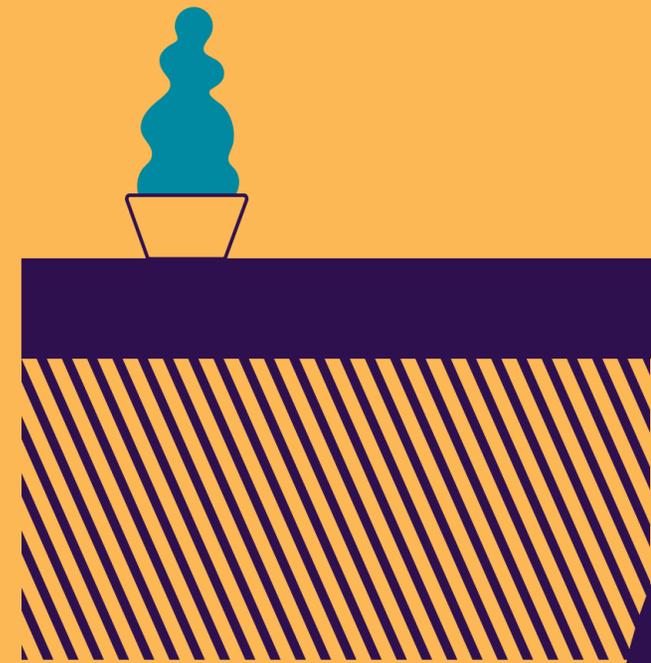

The kids at my school are different to me, scary to me and strange to me

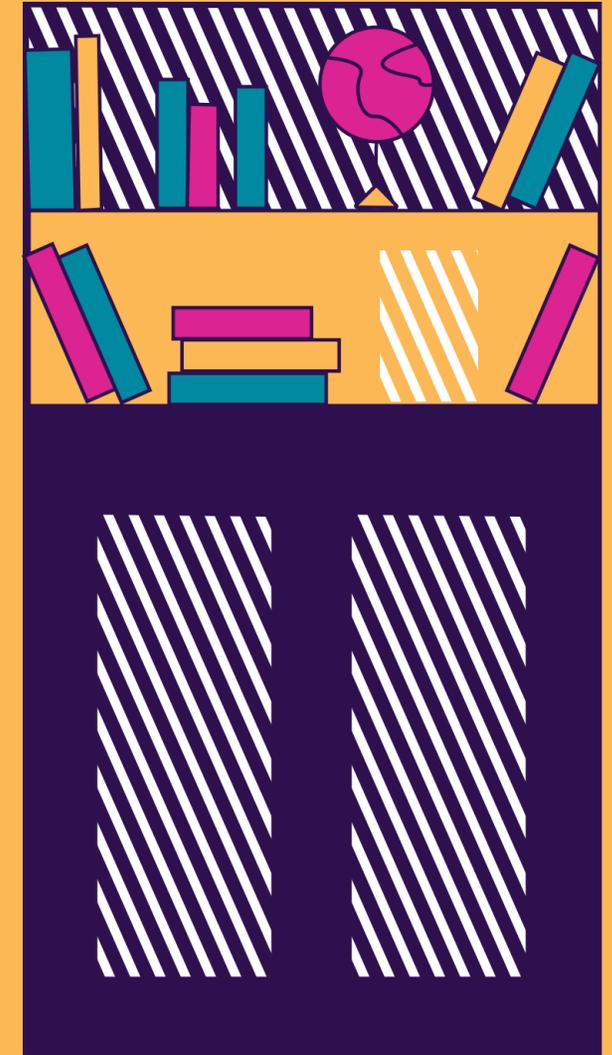

It's silly to think that

Our differences make us strong as a team

But

Building walls will keep us safer

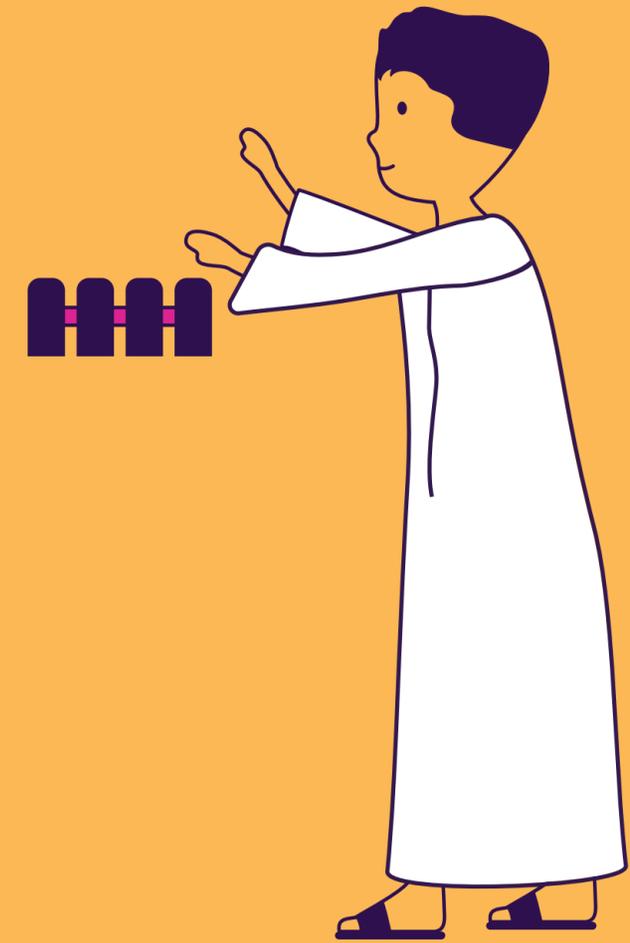

It's not true that

I Am Because We Are

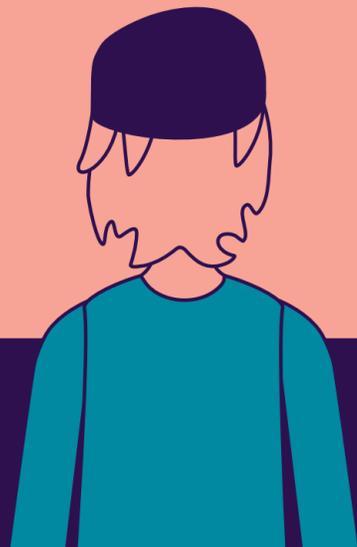

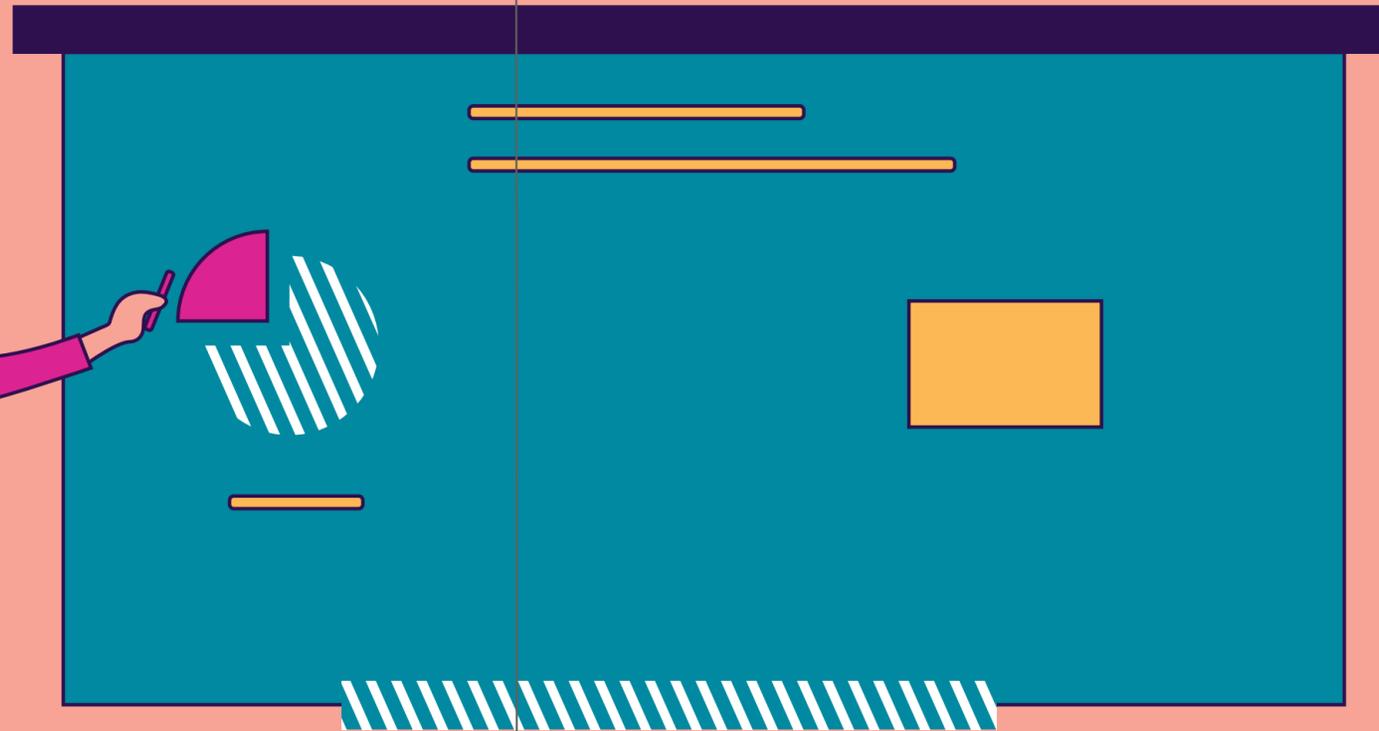

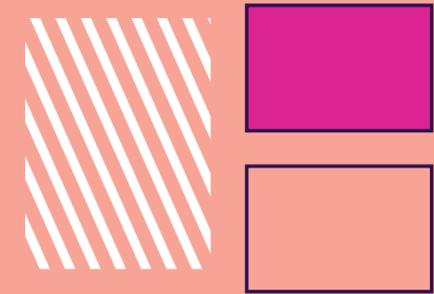

We are better together, and

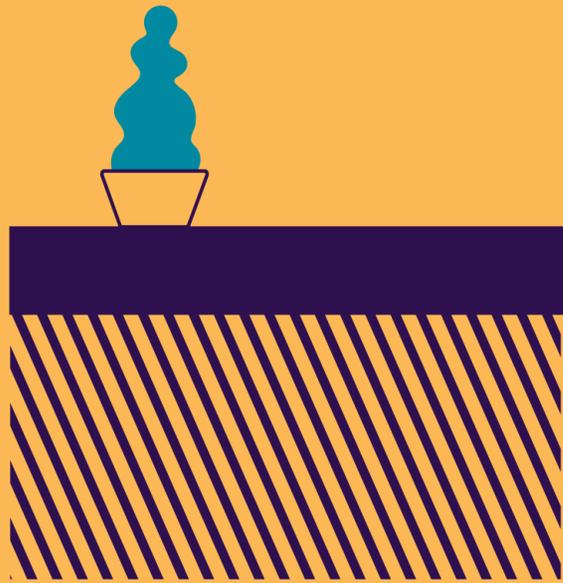

We are stronger together

My teacher says that:

We are all the same
on the inside

Though we all look different on the outside

For, I will tell you this:

We are different

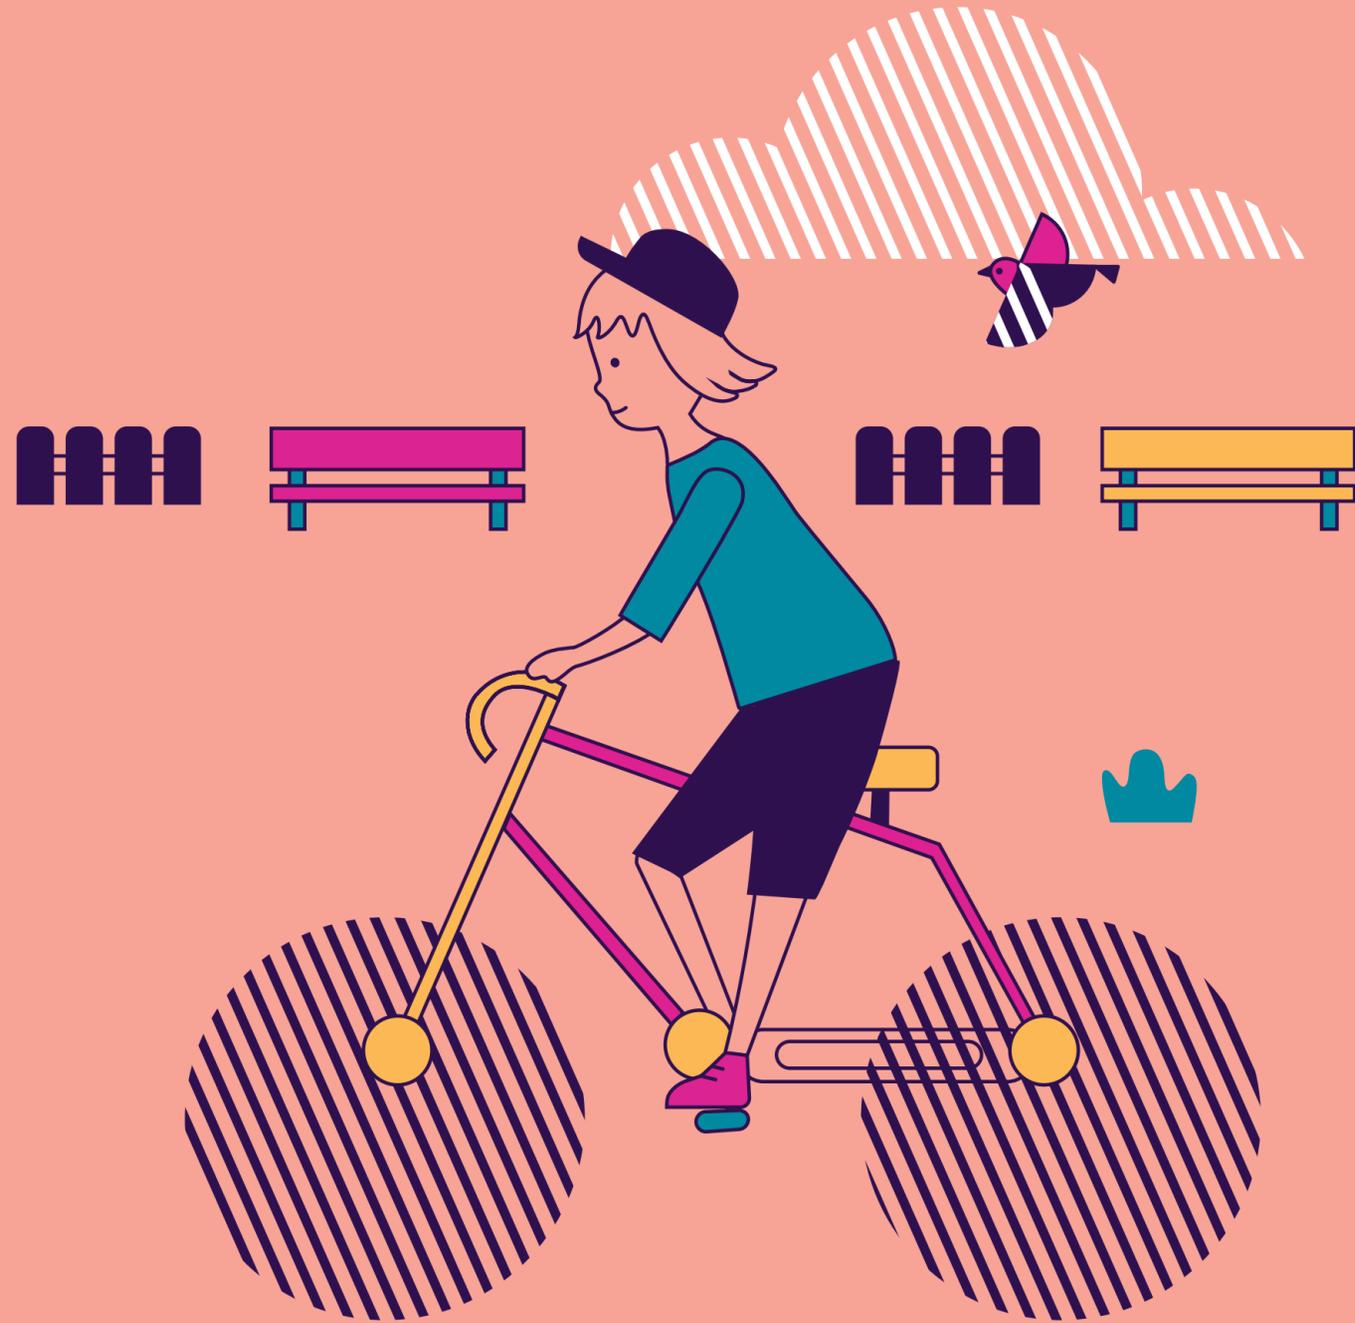

More than

We are same

I'm sure you can agree that

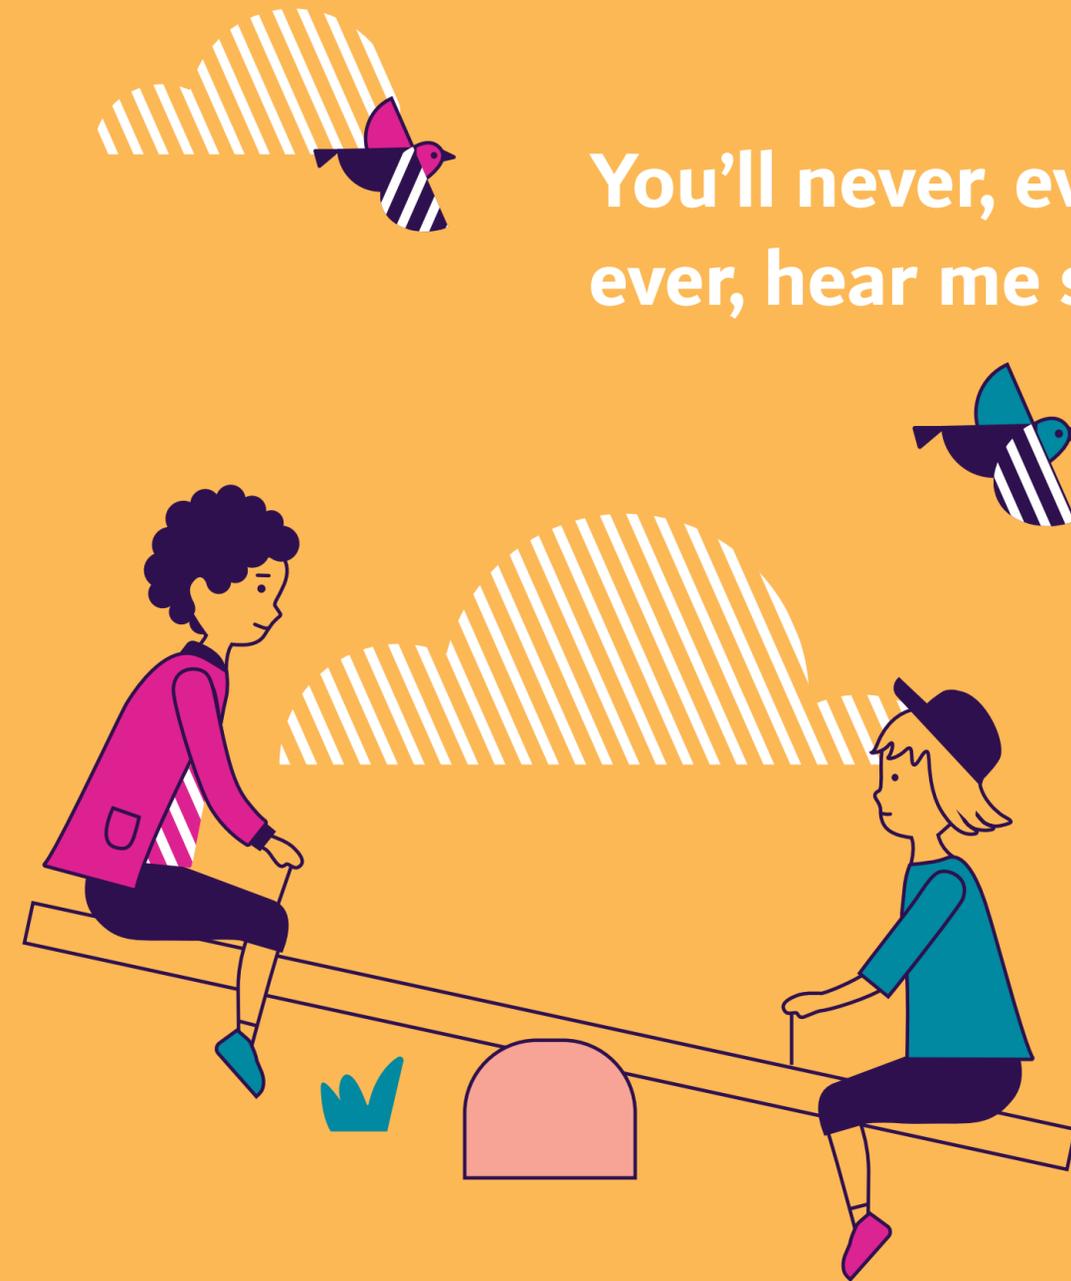

No matter what

The kids at school
will never play with me!

You'll never, ever,
ever, hear me say that

I make a new friend every day and

I love my school.

Now read the book pages backwards.
